

BONDS BOOSTED AT BIG MEETING

Lippman Makes Plea for Improvements and Annihilates a Butter-In.

ISSUE IS CLEARLY DEFINED

BONDS MUST BE PASSED OR TAX RATE GOES UP.

The feature of the bond meeting at Liberty park last night under the auspices of the Woman's auxiliary of the "American" party, was the practical and efficient demonstration by Joe Lippman of the foolishness and futility of a man butting into another man's game.

Lippman made a speech in favor of the bonds, and also made a speech in favor of the "American" party. For every word he said for the bonds he said two for the "American" party and an additional one in denunciation of the Mormon church and its "methods."

J. E. Darmer, chairman of the city committee of the "American" party, was the chairman. The lawn in front of the music stand contained seats in a semi-circle. About 2,000 people were present, of which a very large proportion was women.

Lippman Makes a Start. Mr. Lippman, at the beginning, said that he had attended a meeting in the Third ward recently which was controlled by the opposition to the extent that no one who did not favor the bonds was permitted to speak. He had listened, he said, to two hours of misstatements.

"There were long-bearded men there," said Mr. Lippman, "who came across the plains. They were bred in superstition, and they believed that because they had drunk from ditches, had no paving, used cesspools, had no schools, they want us to do the same."

"Ladies and gentlemen, we want improvements. We want our sewer system extended, we want various improvements which will cost at least $600,000, and that can never be raised by taxation in this city."

On a High Pedestal. Mr. Lippman put the halo on the "American" party administration in a manner that would have made Diogenes look like a fraction of a second in the Gregorian system of keeping time.

"They tell us," said Mr. Lippman, "that if we vote these bonds there will be graft. Do you believe that there is a single man in the city council who would get away with a cent of this money? Do you believe that there is a single man in this administration who is dishonest?"

Some facetious was said that he didn't know about single men, but he was not so sure about married men. This remark, however, Mr. Lippman did not hear, and he proceeded with a calm vehemence which is characteristic of Mr. Lippman. He said that there were any number of safeguards that would be thrown around the $600,000 if it were voted, and went on to enumerate them. He recited the various stages in the rocky road of a contract, and described its devious course from the time it is proposed until it is finally signed by the mayor. He began with the board of public works, and said that H. G. McMillan and W. J. Halloran were honest men, and so were the others on the board. He said that W. Mont Ferry was a man whose honesty had never been questioned.

The Inner Circle. "And finally it comes to the mayor. No man will question the honesty of Mayor Beardsford, or his ability. The press is unanimous in lifting him to a high pedestal."

"How about the inner circle?" came from a voice under a tree. "What's that?" said Lippman. "The inner circle?" said the voice. "The inner circle?" said Lippman. "The inner circle?" said the voice. "The inner circle?" said Lippman. "The inner circle?" said the voice.

"Neither do I," said the voice, "and that's the reason I am asking you." "Put him out! Put him out!" "Let him alone," shouted Lippman. "This is a meeting where everybody can talk."

And then Mr. Lippman addressed himself to the man under the tree substantially after this fashion: "It is such a benighted man as you, that are bred in ignorance and superstition, that have placed the stigma on Utah, and in the galaxy of states you have made it a stink. It is such mossbacks as you."

"Have you got long whiskers?" demanded the voice under the tree. "Ladies and gentlemen," said Lippman with a pretense of calm, but with every indication of anger, "pay no heed to him, for he is a sophisticated rhetor."

leian inebriated with the exuberance of his own verbosity and egotistical imagination—"W-e-o-o-e-w!" wailed upon the night air a hound's baying in tones that must have started from his appendix and accumulated in volume as they made progress.

"I don't blame you a bit, pup," said Lippman. "I think any living thing has a right to kick when he has a kick coming, and I surely believe you had a kick coming on that. Will the committee give me a glass of water, please?"

And there the incident closed, as they say in diplomatic circles, and everybody sighed in relief.

Down to Business Again.

When Mr. Lippman got down to business again, he said that there were two ways about this bond business. "This is the proposition in a nutshell," he said. "The legislature has given the city power to levy taxes for 25 mills, divided thus: General, 5; water, 10; streets, 5; sewer, 5. Now, up to this time there has never been levied a tax to exceed 13 mills. Under the 13-mill tax you are paying $3.73 the $100. Do you want to raise the assessment to 19 or 20 mills that the city must have to carry out the improvements that have been begun and which need this money for their completion, or do you prefer to vote these bonds complete your improvements and let posterity carry a part of the burden? Do you want to pay $4.33 a hundred in taxation instead of $3.73 for that's what it amounts to, or let the tens of thousands who come later pay for a portion of the benefits which they enjoy?"

And then Mr. Lippman beseeched his hearers to vote twice on Wednesday for the bonds—once for the $25,000 sewer bonds and once for the $475,000 of water bonds. "Pull the lever twice," said Mr. Lippman, "and you will have done your duty as American citizens."

Weber Is for Progress.

Judge A. J. Weber had to be called for several times before he came forward. "Mr. Lippman just told you that there were two sides to every public question, but I can see only one side to this one, and I believe that you will agree with me after what you've heard."

Judge Weber then emphasized some of the points made by Lippman. The meeting was closed by a brief address by Mr. Darmer, who repeated what the previous speakers had said, and emphasized the fact that it is necessary under the law to make the tax levy in the month of July, and that the month of July ends on Friday. Therefore, if the bonds are not voted by the tax levy must be high, and if they are voted, posterity will pay the bill.

CHAIRMEN HOLD MEETING.

District Leaders Plan to Get Out Full Vote at Bond Election.

The "American" party chairman of every district in the city met last evening in Judge Dixon's courtroom for the purpose of making complete arrangements for getting the voters of each district to the polls at the bond election tomorrow. Carriages look like a fraction of a second in the Gregorian system of keeping time.

"They tell us," said Mr. Lippman, "that if we vote these bonds there will be graft. Do you believe that there is a single man in the city council who would get away with a cent of this money? Do you believe that there is a single man in this administration who is dishonest?"

YOUNG WIFE ACCUSED.
Complaint Charging Vagrancy Issued Against Gladys Cook.

The problem of what to do with Gladys Cook, the 15-year-old wife of Joseph Cook, who was found in a Commercial street resort, was solved yesterday by the county attorney, who issued a complaint charging her with vagrancy. It was at first thought that she could be sent to the state industrial school, as she is under legal age, but the fact that she is married made this impossible.

Joseph Cook, her husband, is suing her for a divorce and his case will come up in the district court probably this week.

YOUNG HEIR TO THE GOULD MILLIONS WILL PROSPECT FROM PRIVATE CAR

Kingdon Gould, heir to the Gould millions, who arrived in Salt Lake early Sunday morning, says that he likes Salt Lake so well that his stay in this vicinity will be indefinite. Young Gould arrived here from Denver, accompanied by Professor J. F. Kemp of Columbia university, and three students of mining engineering who are in young Gould's class at Columbia. Carlos Espinosa de los Monteros of Lima, Peru, and Rush Estee and George Danahy of New York.

On Sunday they spent a quiet day resting and sight-seeing, and yesterday morning they went out to see the mines at Bingham with Sidney Bamberger and Louis S. Cates. They were particularly interested in the Boston Con. porphyry mines.

This morning the Gould party will start westward over the Western Pacific, but will be gone only a few days. While they are passing through Nevada stops will be made for little prospecting trips wherever the geological formation of the country offers promise of interesting discovery.

These prospecting trips will never carry young Gould and his companions far from the soft couches and the well provided table of the dining car. There will be no pack horses, water bottles, frying pans and blankets for a long and toilsome excursion into the heart of the hills. The members of the party will take small prospecting hammers and compasses and putter around, and learn of the geology of the country which fall from Professor Kemp's lips.

Young Gould, being sure of becoming the master of millions some day, lacks the chief incentive which drives men into the hills in search of bonanza mines.

When seen last night in his private car in the Rio Grande yards, young Gould said that the prospecting trips would not be real searches for treasure, but would be for the purpose of studying geology.

He is a slender young man, and his first moustache has just sprouted. It is such a small moustache that it would have escaped notice had it not been for its dark color. Its possessor was very proud of it, and once or twice attempted to twirl it, but it eluded his fingers, not having yet reached the twirling stage of growth.

"Professor Kemp is boss of the party," said young Gould, "and the course we take will depend upon his wishes. I think that we will be back from our trip over the Western Pacific in a few days, but it is possible that we may remain away longer than I expect."

"We intend to 'prospect' some—that is, we will examine the geological formation of the country, but the main purpose of our trip west is to look at the big mines and study the manner in which the mining is being done."

"We haven't a camping outfit with us, and for that reason all of our trips into the hills will be arranged so that we can get back to the car at night."

"I was in Salt Lake last year and was very much pleased with what I saw here. Salt Lake is great. It was because I liked Salt Lake so well that I decided to come back this summer."

"We will probably be around Salt Lake for some time."

Young Gould is studying to be a mining engineer. He and his student companions expect to become the John Hays Hammonds and the Pope Yeatmans of the future. Young Gould will, of course, be a railroad magnate on the side.

CHARGE OF FRAUD AGAINST NELSON

Salt Lake Banker Alleged to Have Misrepresented Value of Mining Stock.

C. R. Dorius of Ephraim accuses Joseph Nelson, formerly cashier of the Utah National bank, with endeavoring to defraud him by misrepresentations in regard to the value of mining stock, in an answer filed in the district court yesterday.

The answer is to a suit for $10,000 alleged to be due by Dorius to Nelson on a six-month note and deposited with the White Light & Mining & Milling company as collateral.

Dorius in his answer admits that he executed the note, but says that he gave it in payment for the stock, which was to be held by the bank until he could procure the money. He says, however, that Nelson represented to him that the property of the company was developed and that he was securing the stock at a bargain and less than the market value.

These statements, Dorius claims, were absolutely false and misleading and were made for the purpose of defrauding him. He also asserts that the property is worthless and that Nelson was aware of the fact when he induced him to sign the note. Dorius asserts in addition that Nelson has discovered the fraud he notified Mr. Nelson to take back the stocks and return the note.

The capital stock of the company is $100,000. The capital stock is $100,000. The capital stock is $100,000. The capital stock is $100,000. The capital stock is $100,000.

L. P. JUDD, clerk of the board of education, leaves today for Chicago, where he will deliver to N. H. Halsey & Co. the $25,000 worth of school property he sold to that concern. After transacting his business there Mr. Judd will visit the eastern states.

SAYS HUSBAND WAS CRUEL.
Wife Seeks Divorce Because of Alleged Mistreatment.

Alleging that her husband has been guilty of cruel treatment and has a vicious and violent temper, Lottie Donnelly yesterday brought suit for divorce against W. H. Donnelly. They were married at Farmington on Feb. 14, 1906, and the wife asserts that she can no longer live with him because of his cruelty toward her. On July 20 last, she says, he choked her, called her vile names, chased her from the house and was only prevented from doing her further violence by the "timely" interference of the neighbors. She asks for a divorce and the custody of her infant daughter.

AUSTRIAN MAY BE MURDERER

Joe Zubich, Arrested at Garfield, Is Identified as the Slayer of Greek.

WAS FUGITIVE FOUR YEARS

QUARREL AT SMELTER LEADS TO CAPTURE.

It is the belief of the sheriff's office that they have made a most important capture in the arrest of Joe Zubich, who was arrested for flourishing and discharging a revolver at Garfield last Friday night. He has been identified by Andrew Papas, a Greek who was present at the stabbing, as Marko Zilgich, who murdered William Ferry with a knife at Murray, Aug. 12, 1904.

When Zubich, or Zilgich, was taken to the county jail the officers looked him over carefully and discovered that his appearance tallied exactly with the description of the Murray murderer who had escaped from the clutches of the law four years ago. They immediately took steps to prove his identity, and Papas positively identified the man as the person who stabbed Ferry at the doorway of his bake shop in Murray four years ago. Two other residents of Murray, who were familiar with Zilgich's appearance, will be brought to the city today and given an opportunity to identify the criminal.

At the time of the Ferry murder, an accurate description of Zilgich was secured and circulated among the police departments of the whole country, and Zilgich answers to this description in every particular. Rewards aggregating $700 were offered for his capture and conviction, but no trace of him was found until the arrest on Friday night. William Ferry was stabbed at the doorway of the bake shop, which he owned in partnership with Andrew Papas, and was instantly killed. The weapon used was a large butcher knife and the one blow proved fatal.

The murderer twisted the knife about in the wound, which had reached the heart at the first thrust. Papas was standing at the side of his partner when the stabbing occurred and himself narrowly escaped injury. He is confident that Zubich is the man who stabbed Ferry and is willing to take oath to that effect. Papas stated that the killing was absolutely without justification and that no quarrel had occurred between Ferry and Zilgich prior to the murder.

LOCAL SHOWERS FOR TODAY

Relief From Heat Promised in Rainfall—Extraordinary Precipitation at Modena.

Local showers are on the card of the weather man for today. This means that there will be relief from the intense heat, at least for a day.

Yesterday's conditions were anything but pleasant. It was as sultry as sultry could well be, and the breeze kept itself carefully concealed. The relative humidity was 77 per cent at 6 o'clock last evening, and it is the relative humidity "that makes you feel it so," even if the thermometer does tell you something different.

The maximum temperature yesterday was 88 degrees. During the twenty-four hours there was a trace of precipitation, but the sprinkle amounted to little.

An extraordinary and undoubtedly welcome rainfall occurred yesterday at Modena, in the southern part of this state, where more than an inch and a quarter of rain was recorded by the gauge. There were also heavy rainfalls at Jacksonville and in the District of Columbia.

The changes in temperature were unimportant, the tendency being slightly higher in most cases.

The record for yesterday is: Temperature at 6 p. m., 84; maximum 88; mean temperature, 80, which is normal; total deficiency of temperature since July 1, 9; accumulated deficiency of temperature since July 1, 25 degrees.

Total precipitation, trace; total precipitation since July 1, .03 inch, which is .47 inch below normal; accumulated excess since Jan. 1, 1.78 inches.

Relative humidity at 6 p. m., 57 per cent.

LOST CHECK IS RECOVERED

Carrier Turns in $50 Slip With His Accumulation of Mail—Comes From Mail Box.

When the postoffice force was working the mail yesterday that is gathered by the carriers one of the men found a check for $50 in the collection. The check was made out by the Frank J. Walker company of Pinedale, Utah, in favor of J. A. Brown.

It may be that Mr. Brown, in mailing a number of letters, accidentally slipped the check in with the lot. It may be, also, that the check was lost on the street and that some honest person found it and put it into a mail box, knowing that it would be safe there and would eventually come to its owner.

The name of the carrier by whom the check was collected is not known.
